NEW "COMIC" FOR THIS PAPER

War Cartoonist and Veteran of St. Mihiel Creates New Comic-Strip Character

"The Life, Loves and Adventures of Mr. Joe Martin," Rich in Humor and Forceful Satire, To Be Published Weekly

A NOTED ARTIST has been added to our staff. Arrangements have been made for the publication of a COMIC STRIP, a caricature of "The Life, Loves and Adventures of Mr. Joe Martin," which will appear weekly in our columns. The artist is Forest A. McGinn, a marine veteran whose sport cartoons were for many years well-known throughout the west and whose clever war drawings and Liberty Loan pictures have since been reproduced by leading newspapers and magazines.

Mr. McGinn saw service in France with the 47th Company, 5th Regiment, United States Marines, and was wounded in the forehead and both arms. The same shell killed the two men who were with him. It was during this engagement that he lost a book of sketches for which search still is being made. If found, its notes and drawings are to be incorporated into the history of the immortal Second Division. The missing book contains many hastily penciled sketches of men and officers who had performed heroic deeds at Belleau Wood and elsewhere, some of whom were killed at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne.

During his months of convalescence in the A. E. F. hospitals and later in the Brooklyn Naval hospital, Mr. McGinn continued his work, even while hampered by bandages and slowly healing wounds. Propped up with pillows and supplied with drawing materials, he made studies in pencil, crayon and oil, according to the desire of nurses, physicians, visitors and fellow patients. Many of the finished pictures appeared in current publications.

Mr. McGinn is a native of Clay City, Indiana. He was one of four brothers in the service. Of the other three, Lieut. Glenn McGinn served in the First Regular Infantry; Sergeant Leland McGinn was a dispatch rider in the aerial service and Private Peter McGinn cast his lot with the Twenty-sixth Division.

Forest McGinn did his first art work in Chicago and later became established in Texas. He was in Dallas at the time of his enlistment with the marines. Since his discharge from the service he has been pursuing his art career in New York City.

In "Joe Martin," a monkey character, Mr. McGinn has created a comic personality which promises to gain a popularity with the reading public equal to that of other well-known, comic-strip characters. Into the unique situations which the series depicts he has woven a keen sense of humor and an originality of concept as interesting and entertaining as it is admirable for the technique of its portrayal.

The pictures are such as will be of interest in the home. They will amuse and entertain. Their appeal is to both old and young. The humorous experiences, romantic love affairs, brilliant wedding and conjugal differences through which "Joe" cavorts across the columns of each successive strip contain subtle jokes and complications that are bound to bring a smile to the face of any tired business man or harassed housewife.

The art of furnishing a home, how to keep a cook, methods of training a husband and the wisdom of silence and camouflage all have their place in this series of gloom-killing and grouch-destroying comic pictures. You are sure to like them. They will appear each week. You cannot afford to miss one. Now that you have been introduced to the artist you will like them even more.

Animal Movie Star Coming Here

The greatest movie star of them all will visit Tucson Thursday, Nov. 4. This illustrious member of the studio stars carries his own physician with him in the person of Dr. Robert Gunning and a graduate nurse, Miss Elsie Munson. The star in question is making its first stantly engaged looking after Joe's personal appearance and is no less comfort.
